Information Brochure Certificate Course in Forensic Management

This program is specifically designed for the employees of CFSL and State FSL. The employees of FSL/CFL are masters in their respective fields and carry immense knowledge and experience that cannot be rivaled. Forensic management is a framework that helps integrate forensic investigation and professional management. It helps to establish a clear ground in their respective sciences and master management skills necessary in their professional career. There are chances that they may lack specific management skills which can only be polished through the awareness caused by education. Even before the start of investigations or a particular project, there are several hurdles that an employee might face. Even a task such as system of preserving documents, allocation of duty, selecting the right personnel for the job or preparing standardized reports might be tedious without knowing how to manage them properly. School of Management Studies prepared a "Certificate Course in Forensic Management" (03 months duration – full time) that has been uniquely designed for the employees of Forensic Science Laboratories to help them not just be masters in their field but also to hone their managerial skills, which will help them in handling their crime scene cases more efficiently and effectively.

The course will give the employees an in-depth understanding of the various vertices like Planning, Staffing, Organizing, Controlling, Directing, Budgeting, Financial Management, Project Planning & Management which form the pillars that any employee must be aware of. It is a one-of-a-kind program that helps instill managerial skills in those who do not have a background in the same. Forensic management aims to handle a large volume of sensitive data commendably and proficiently. For any organization, resources are limited, so their efficient utilization and management is of utmost importance. This prepares them to choose the right person for the right job, oversee their crime scene management, lay out a detailed plan of investigation, coordinate between departments, and understand unprecedented factors that may act as a hindrance to their work.
